UC Merced - Fresno Unified School District Partnership

In 2009, UC Merced and Fresno Unified School District (FUSD) established a groundbreaking body of work focused on equity and access for all students. The mission is to ensure students are given an equal opportunity to graduate from high school and have the greatest number of postsecondary choices from the widest array of options.

To more rapidly advance this unique partnership — as well as to support excellence in research, public service and teaching — Associate Vice Chancellor Jorge Aguilar was granted a leave of absence from UC Merced to work at Fresno Unified School District.

Fresno Unified School District is the fourth-largest district in California, with more than 73,000 students. With Aguilar serving as associate superintendent for equity and access and special assistant to FUSD Superintendent Michael Hanson, both UC Merced and FUSD are seeing encouraging outcomes from this partnership.

Equity and access are the backbone of the partnership between Fresno Unified and UC Merced. When implemented, this focus on equity and access is envisioned to result in new protocols that ensure students are given an equal opportunity to graduate and have the greatest number of postsecondary choices.

These protocols are envisioned to have an impact on students' academic and social-emotional well-being — and, by extension, the well-being of the community.

UC Merced's unique partnership with Fresno Unified School District is expected to continue yielding immediate benefits to students as well as important lessons learned that will guide the future work of both UC Merced and FUSD in this area.

ASSOCIATE VICE CHANCELLOR'S MESSAGE | Jorge Aguilar

When founding Chancellor Carol Tomlinson-Keasey approved the establishment of the Center for Educational Partnerships in 2002, we had a vision, but no funding to make it a reality. In fact, we operated one academic partnership program with a staff of seven. There were scarcely enough resources to realize the goal intrinsic to our vision: creating equal opportunities for all students to graduate from secondary schools with the greatest number of postsecondary choices from the widest array of options.

Today, with 41 staff members and investments from state, federal and private sources exceeding $15 million, we are closer than ever to seeing that vision become a reality — a vision based on our steadfast commitment to advance equity and access for educationally disadvantaged students and families across the San Joaquin Valley.

We know that state and federal accountability standards do not incentivize schools to focus on higher education-related matters. Therefore, over the past 10 years, we have remained committed to pursuing and learning the best ways to collaborate with school districts across the San Joaquin Valley.

In that period, we have been fortunate to identify partner school districts willing to adopt and focus on advancing our equity and access principles. Our collaboration with those school districts has provided clear evidence that public schools and institutions of higher education both benefit when partnerships are genuine. We have seen the benefits to students and entire families when we all focus on empowering educationally disadvantaged students and families.

As the newest campus of the University of California system, UC Merced was built with the hope of designing and implementing a distinctive vision and culture as an institution of higher learning that San Joaquin Valley residents would call “our university.” Our 41 staff members of the Center for Educational Partnerships are proud to call this campus “our university,” and we stand ready to continue collaborating with school districts across our Valley.

Our commitment to focus on equity and access for students and families is unquestionable, and we look forward to the next 10 years of perfecting the outcomes that are embodied in our vision!
