RE: 2016 Draft Analysis of Impediments

Dear Ms. Clark:

I write to provide a few comments on the City's 2016 Analysis of Impediments to Fair Housing Choice.

As you may recall, CCLS attorney Marcos Segura and I wrote to you in February (copy attached), during the early stages of your consultant's work on the Analysis of Impediments. That letter followed, and raised many of the same issues, from our January 19 meeting, also attended by Luisa Medina, Joe Trujillo, and two members of the City Attorney's staff. We'd wanted to give early warning of looming obstacles to a valid and useful Analysis of Impediments—so that you and your consultant would have time to course-correct. Alas, to no avail.

So the final product is indeed inadequate in many of the ways we had feared: failing to secure adequate public input; failing to call out City-perpetuated structural impediments to fair housing choice; and, crucially, failing to analyze the disparate impacts of the City's own administrative and entitlement decisions.

"Public Involvement"

As our February letter predicted (pages 3-4), the consultant bent the poorly drafted survey tool to purposes it was never intended to serve. Resulting participation: 7 (seven) respondents. Resulting data: apparently 0 (zero) — the tables purporting to report the responses are empty of data, and Appendix B (AI p.161), where it's all supposed to be collected, is likewise vacant, except for the (unfulfilled) promise "To be included in future drafts of the Analysis of Impediments." (Not that data from seven respondents could possibly be of any use whatsoever. But still—your consultants ought to have finished their work before it goes to Council, and definitely before they bill us all for it.)

Though they confess to the miserable survey response, the consultants do not mention the similarly miserable turnout at the "Fair Housing Forums." The Forum that I attended included one non-advocate community member and her two small children; the other 5 or 6 of us were The Usual Suspects. I heard from attendees at other forums that attendance there was also small. These poor results follow logically from the poorly organized and last-minute effort to accomplish public input that was apparently never integral or essential to the project.

Unfortunately, bringing the AI to the Housing and Community Development Commission the evening before the City Council hearing—precluding a substantive written staff report conveying the Commissioners' input to the City Council—is an inadequate substitute for real community involvement in the process. Finally, the City Council hearing itself is scheduled for mid-morning, after the Council President denied a request for a 5 p.m. setting to permit working members of the public to attend.

City-perpetuated impediments to fair housing choice

Housing Element

The newly-adopted Housing Element is a structural contributor to segregated housing in the City of Fresno: it maps out future housing development along the same large-lots-in-the-north/density-in-the-south pattern that has been the rule for decades. Although the Housing Element calls for distribution of some less-dense/higher-income housing in the south part of the City, it fails to provide practical, enforceable measures to finance or otherwise incentivize such development. More problematically, the Housing Element preserves (for example) the almost entirely higher income enclave in northeast neighborhoods.

The AI's maps clearly show the racially segregating impact of these allocations, but the AI text mentions the Housing Element's proposed programs without calling out the Housing Element parcel inventory as itself being a barrier.

Entitlement decisions

The City's entitlement grants over the past decade or so have persistently privileged above-moderate income housing, and have all but completely failed to incentivize, or otherwise to ensure, housing built for Fresnans with moderate incomes and below.

The Analysis of Impediments fails to call out this structural barrier to fair housing, let alone provide some Actions or Measurable Objectives to correct this practice.

Lack of coherent affordable housing policy

The Analysis of Impediments does identify various ways in which the City of Fresno could begin to organize an achievable housing policy — one that meets the needs of all Fresnans for safe, healthy and affordable housing in neighborhoods of opportunity.

But this AI is deeply flawed as a mechanism for accomplishing that aim. Such Actions and Measurable Objectives as the Analysis of Impediments does identify are untethered to deadlines, or to any analysis of the resources required to achieve them, or to any particular department or administrative function. It's hard to say they're even aspirational: in their current form, they are meaningless.

In a city where almost 50% of renters are paying more than 30% of their income for housing, the City's failure to adopt an actual plan — with deliverables and timelines and accountability processes — to protect and increase the affordable housing stock is at best a dereliction of duty.

Last summer, several of us met with administrative staff to propose that the City economize on consulting fees, and maximize the utility of consultants' analysis, by combining the Housing Element and Analysis of Impediments processes. These analyses should have informed each other, and could have contributed substantially to the coherent housing policy this City so desperately needs. In the event, none of that has occurred. We see part of the result in this Analysis of Impediments.

Thanking you for your consideration of these comments, I remain,

Very truly yours,
PATIENCE MILROD

RE: Analysis of Impediments - Preliminary Comments re: Process

We write at this early stage of your consultants' work on the Analysis of Impediments (AI) in order to highlight some of its readily discernible deficits, trusting that you and WES will work together to correct course. What follow are proposals to ensure a high quality AI that performs a meaningful and useful function for this City, rather than mere compliance in checking certain boxes for the benefit of HUD.

In the city of Fresno, the most significant impediment to fair housing is the fundamentally segregated nature of the city's existing housing inventory — by race, ethnicity and economic class. WES's maps call this out quite clearly.

Fair housing change will require two types of effort by the City of Fresno: 1) ensuring different housing availability across the city, to allow people to choose to live in neighborhoods that have different balances of race and ethnicity; and 2) ensuring that existing neighborhoods in South Fresno and Pinedale are also Neighborhoods of Opportunity, in that they enjoy at least the same levels of amenities, and the same quality of infrastructure, as more-recently built and more affluent neighborhoods in North Fresno. Any serious Analysis of Impediments to fair housing must scrupulously examine how the City is going to accomplish these objectives.

Toward these ends, we respectfully submit the following comments.

It is unclear from the scope of work, and the presentation at the Fair Housing Forum we attended (also attended by Housing Authority staff), whether the Housing Authority (HA) is actively involved as a partner in preparing this AI. Since the HA is an essential execution partner for any actions the City may take to overcome our many impediments to fair housing here, we

- strongly urge the City to do whatever may be necessary to bring the HA into this AI effort.
- As its proposed scope of work promised (see attached Response to Bid (RTB), Task 4), WES must actually obtain pertinent data, and analyze without fear or favor, whether and to what extent the following matters constitute impediments to fair housing in the City of Fresno:
 - a. Land use codes and zoning. These must include but are not limited to:
 - i. Zoned densities which effectively ensure new housing will exacerbate the already-existing racial and ethnic segregation that defines the landscape of this city. (E.g., see attached Housing Element draft, Appendix B—which needs to be sorted and mapped by affordability/density.)
 - ii. Locations of residential vs. industrial uses—often virtually colocated in neighborhoods in the southern parts of the city, and thus far distant from homes in the north part of town. The City Council approved an Industrial Compatibility Study in the 2015-2016 budget. WES must obtain and use the data and analysis from this study in analyzing land use codes and zoning for Fresno's new AI.
 - b. Public policy practices. These must include but are not limited to:
 - i. Official City Council repudiation of inclusionary housing as a City policy*—arguably unlawful under California law, but in any event certainly a signal from this City's legislative body that it does not believe it has an obligation to remove impediments to fair housing.
 - Massive oversupply of above-moderate income housing (Table B, City of Fresno 2014 Housing Element Annual Progress Report, attached).
 - iii. Extraordinary shortage of housing for residents with moderate (or lower) incomes (Table B, City of Fresno 2014 Housing Element Annual Progress Report, attached).
 - iv. Inadequate systems for preserving low-income units (code ^{*&}quot;Councilmember Brandau motioned to add section 15-2201-H regarding inclusionary zoning as follows: 'Nothing in this Article shall be construed as a provision for inclusionary zoning where an applicant is required to provide housing affordable to moderate, low and very low income households as a condition of approval for a residential development. Furthermore, the Council shall not adopt a provision for inclusionary zoning, as described above, unless and until the Fresno General Plan adopted in December 2014 is updated and superseded by a new General Plan.' The motion was seconded by Councilmember Brand and passed by a vote of 4 to 2 with President Baines and Councilmember Soria voting 'no' and Councilmember Quintero absent." City of Fresno, Meeting Minutes – Final, November 19, 2015, pp. 16-17, attached.

- enforcement failures, fires in abandoned buildings, deterioration to the point of tear-down—again, conditions almost exclusively found in south Fresno); e.g., the Fresno Fire Department can readily provide documentation of the steep increases in abandoned-house fires in the city over the past 5 years.
- v. Lack of consistent City action toward ensuring housing for homeless residents.
- vi. Differential allocations of infrastructure and public works maintenance dollars, reflected in readily-observable differences in the condition of streets, sidewalks, streetlights, parks, etc.
- c. Neighborhood attitudes: this must include but is not limited to:
 - i. Historical and recent NIMBY-esque public resistance, including lawsuits, attempting to prevent multi-family housing in the north part of Fresno.
 - ii. City councilmembers' "defense" of their own Districts' neighborhoods from the mission the AI is intended to accomplish, including public comments by Lee Brand and Steve Brandau (whose districts lie in north Fresno) that refer to HUD's Affirmatively Furthering rule as "social engineering." (Fresno Bee article, attached.)
- 3) WES also promises to promote citizen participation (RTB, Task 5). If this is a serious goal, we look forward to seeing the following:
 - a. Proper use of survey tools
 - i. The survey WES describes in its scope of work (RTB, p. 4) is intended to "target[] experts in the housing field, which will allow substantive information to be collected on perceptions of laws; regulations; and both public and private policies, practices, and procedures affecting housing choice." Setting aside whether a survey is the logical way to collect this information, the survey instrument distributed at the Fair Housing Forums is extremely poorly designed and unlikely to yield usable information, let alone reliable data (e.g.: compound questions requiring a yes/no answer; qualitative questions with only quantitative answer options; etc.).
 - ii. As bad as the survey tool is, even for experts in the housing field, it is completely inadequate and impossible for ordinary, non-expert residents. Nevertheless, DARM has expressed an intention to distribute it widely to the public through community groups, the Housing Authority, and other outlets—as if it could possibly collect data from these respondents that would be useful in an AI!
 - b. Dissemination of surveys to appropriate audiences

- i. Assuming WES does develop a survey tool adequate to elicit information from non-expert community members, WES will then need to partner with organizations and institutions that have both wide and deep reach, such as Building Healthy Communities (and its member partners), Building Neighborhood Capacity, and the Southwest Fresno Specific Plan Citizens Advisory Committee.
- ii. Because NIMBY-ism is prevalent in Fresno's predominantly white neighborhoods, and because city councilmembers overtly and actively support such an attitude, it will be essential to survey residents of affluent north-Fresno neighborhoods about their level of information about fair housing and mechanisms for achieving it, their attitudes, and their desires. Ideally, such a survey will also have an educational component, and can begin to be part of the corrective process HUD and the AI anticipate.

c. Public meetings

- i. The "Fair Housing Forums" were dismally attended, at least in part because the noticing was at the very last minute, and inadequately disseminated. Of course this is no way to solicit public input if you're serious about it. We trust there will be additional public meetings, and that they will be noticed well in advance, using multiple media (for example, flyers sent home from schools; newspaper advertising in many types of publications, including the California Advocate and Vida en El Valle; PSAs on television and radio, using multiple outlets such as Radio Bilingüe).
- ii. In addition, engagement and collaboration with organizations based in and trusted by the community is key to getting the word out, and bringing attendance to some reasonable level.
- iii. Results of public meetings—comments, input, and responses—need to be posted and available on line, with links widely disseminated. Otherwise, the public engagement process looks like a mere exercise rather than an honest attempt to learn, and to respond to, community members' concerns.

Records of public engagement efforts

- i. How is the City requiring a showing of diverse populations participating? This doesn't appear in the contract, or in WES's scope of work. Please provide whatever guidance the City has given WES in this respect.
- ii. What records regarding participation of diverse populations is WES keeping? Is the City maintaining any kind of records to document that its AI is meeting this requirement?

Pursuant to our meeting with Jennifer and José Trujillo on January 19, we have provided suggestions about CBOs that might participate with WES in ensuring adequate community engagement in this process, and we will continue to assist in any way within our power. We do rely, however, on the City and its consultant to develop a set of tools, and to deploy them, in a manner that ensures serious efforts to obtain a wide range of input from the public, development of good-quality data, rigorous analysis of that data, and thoughtful proposals for concrete actions that will begin to remove the many impediments to fair housing—including structural inequities and systemic racial prejudice—with which Fresno has struggled for over 150 years.

Thanking you for your kind attention to these matters, we remain,

Very truly yours

SCOPE OF SERVICES Consultant Service Agreement between City of Fresno ("City") and Western Economic Services, LLC. ("Consultant") Analysis of Impediments to Fair Housing PROJECT TITLE

See Attached

A. Overview of WES Approach and Work Plan

Western Economic Services, LLC (WES) recommends that the development of the AI for the City of Fresno unfold in four phases. WES will be 100 percent involved and will not be using any subcontractors for this project. It will be organized, as follows:

Phase I – Orientation entails an Orientation Meeting, with WES receiving applicable documents and project data files from the City, WES working with representatives of the City to better define the project parameters based on affirmed needs and expectations, and WES and the City developing a firm understanding of the process and deliverables. WES and the City will discuss the California protected classes, including race, color, religion, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, marital status, national origin/ancestry, familial status (households with children under age 18), source of income, disability, genetic information and/or retaliation for protesting illegal discrimination. Completion of Phase I will ensure a solid and direct start to the project.

Phase II – Data Collection consists of the collection of Socio-economic and housing data from the U.S. Census Bureau, employment data from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, economic data from the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis, the location of poverty and LIPH, other public housing location, HUD Multi-family housing, Low Income Housing Tax Credit units, and Housing Choice Vouchers, as derived from City and PHA records, investment data from the Community Reinvestment Act, home loan application data from the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act, as it relates to denial rates and High Annual Percentage Rate Loans (HALs), and housing complaint data from HUD and local agencies, including all relevant existing fair housing research and fair housing law cases from the City of Fresno.

An Al should not be created in a vacuum, void of public participation; it is critical to receive citizen and stakeholder involvement throughout the City. WES proposes several ways to obtain such public input. The first is Option I - The 2016 Fair Housing Survey, an online questionnaire of citizens and stakeholders, including real estate agents, lenders, property managers, fair housing advocates, representatives of migrant communities, special needs service providers, community activists, the legal community, and other interested parties. The second is Option II - Interviews with 50 Community Members, which represents a telephone survey of 50 interested community representatives. The third is Option III - Three Focus Groups, a set of gatherings of experts within the for-sale residential real estate, the rental markets, and public land use planning sectors designed to elicit commentary about the fair housing challenges and methods to overcome such challenges seen in each of these three expert communities. These will be held at the City offices in Fresno.

Together, these tasks both broaden and enrich the data collection process by enhancing the qualitative nature of the data, as well as better fulfill the duty to affirmatively further fair housing.

Phase III – Analysis of Data and Development of Preliminary Findings involves assimilation and analysis of both quantitative and qualitative data. This includes a depiction of the socio-economic context and disproportionate concentrations of racial and ethnic minorities and low-income populations by Census tract, as well as descriptions of HUD and any other fair housing entities operating in the City. Identification of preliminary findings represents description of prospective impediments to fair housing choice found in City. Phase III concludes with three Fair Housing Forums, a public input meeting format designed for community representatives and citizens to learn about the AI as well as affording citizens an opportunity to contribute their perspective and commentary about Fair Housing in City. These consecutively scheduled meetings will be held in three physical locations, at least two of which will be in targeted neighborhoods for the CDBG/HOME development work, with at least one in the evening.

Phase IV – Draft and Final Reports includes submission of a Draft Report for Internal Review. This document will include the identified impediments and suggested actions to overcome the impediments, as well as objective measurement criteria reflecting the analysis and actions taken. After receipt of comments from the City, WES will incorporate the feedback into the AI report and submit a Draft Report for Public Review. During the public review period, WES will be available to hold formal presentations before the Housing and Community Development Commission (HCDC) and the City Council. Following receipt of comments on the Draft for Public Review, and after the Formal Presentation, WES will submit the final report in both printed and digital formats.

B. Summary of Key Work Tasks

WES has designed six methodological tasks in the analysis, evaluation, production, and presentation of the Al. The tasks are described as follows:

Task 1. Socio-Economic, Housing, and General Community Profile. WES will examine demographic, income, employment, and housing data depicting the context in which housing choices are made.

- The demographic data will be drawn from Census Bureau data and will compare socioeconomic characteristics by Census tract, revealing any prospective racial or ethnic segregation or over concentrations throughout the Fresno metropolitan area. Demographic trends will also be identified.
- Racially Concentrated Areas of Poverty (RCAPs) and Ethnically Concentrated Areas of Poverty (ECAPs) will be identified for Fresno for 2000, 2010, and 2014 and WES will determine if such areas are increasing or decreasing over time.
- WES will assemble the dissimilarity index for the City and determine if this index of minority segregation is growing larger or shrinking over time, using 2000, 2010, and 2014 Census data.
- The income and employment assessment will analyze household incomes, poverty levels, and low-income populations from Census Bureau data as well as the labor force, employment, and unemployment rates from the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), and employment and income data from the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA). WES will review the location of employment centers and the residence locational choice made by residents of City, if such employment center data is made available to WES by the City.
- The housing evaluation will include an assessment of household size and overcrowding; housing type, tenure, and vacancy; age of housing; ownership and rental housing costs; and housing affordability, including median rents and values. WES will also examine Housing Choice Vouchers and other assisted or public housing uses to identify any segregation or overconcentration of these housing services in any particular area of the City, if such data are made available to WES by the City.
- WES will include a discussion of any disparate impacts that any of the protected classes are encountering and the degree that such impediments are occurring, particularly as it relates to the availability of affordable housing and the geographic distribution of LIPH and other public assisted affordable housing.
- WES will engage in state-of-the-art ArcGIS mapping to evaluate geographic relationships among the demographic, income, employment, transportation, and housing data, including Section 8 and other assisted housing, if made available to WES. Numerous maps will be prepared to represent concepts such as racial and income concentration, and assisted housing locations by Census tract within the City.

- Task 2. Status of the City's Fair Housing System. WES will examine prior and current activities that promote fair housing; review local, state, and federal studies that relate to fair housing; and identify agencies currently providing fair housing programs in the City. This review will cover any Fair Housing Initiative Program (FHIP) grants, fair housing testing, and housing complaints conducted by other agencies, if such data is shared by the agencies, to determine the nature and extent of housing discrimination.
 - WES will assess housing complaints filed with HUD, other Fair Housing agencies, and any other local entity engaged in Fair Housing activities in the City, including the Fair Housing Council of Central California (FHC-CC), located in Fresno. This includes the existence of any fair housing suits filed against any entity in the City and any fair housing testing conducted by representatives of the fair housing community, if they are willing to share these data.
 - WES will identify and describe fair housing practices and procedures of real estate associations and apartment owners' associations, including through any complaints filed with the State or the City of Fresno.
 - WES will assess any prospective inefficiency in the fair housing system through evaluation of fair housing discrimination suits, discriminatory housing practices experienced in the City, and other indicators of fair housing issues.
 - WES will examine the existing fair housing infrastructure, including the roles and activities of various agencies, entities, and organizations active in the local fair housing arena in City, and will analyze their effectiveness in providing fair housing services, including the effectiveness of the FHC-CC as it pertains to the City's fair housing complexion.
 - In conjunction with results of the optional 2016 Fair Housing Survey, WES will discuss whether a lack of understanding of fair housing law, such as source of income and rental vouchers, or a lack of information regarding where to file a complaint plays a role in the filing of fair housing complaints.
- Task 3. Examination of Private Sector Policies and Practices. An investigation of private market issues is a key component in evaluating the fair housing arena. These issues include the sale or rental of housing; the provisions of brokerage services, mortgage lending, insurance sales and underwriting; property appraisal; and property management.
 - Home mortgage loan application information will also be inspected through Home Mortgage Disclosure Act (HMDA) data assessed by gender, race, and ethnicity by Census tract for both loan denials and loan originations. Geographic maps will be prepared to show this data throughout the City.
 - In particular, WES will inspect the geographic distribution of denial rates by race and ethnicity, as well as inspecting High Annual Percentage rate Loans (HALs) in neighborhoods of color, as identified by Census Tract. This will include the source of the loan as well, whether conventional, FHA, or VA loans.
 - Insurance sales and underwriting, property appraisal, and property management for both the rental and for-sale markets will be examined through evaluation of recent court cases, housing complaint data, and perspectives gathered from stakeholders in the 2016 Fair Housing Survey, the optional focus groups, and optional outreach committees.
 - WES will collect recent case histories of private sector housing providers, as drawn from HUD, the State of California Department of Fair Employment and Housing, the FHC-CC,

- and other agencies, to assess the ability and willingness to affirmatively further fair housing by private parties in the City.
- WES will map SBA lending for small businesses by Census tract and size of loan to determine if certain areas of the City are being overlooked by the small business investment community.
- Task 4. Examination of Public Sector Regulations, Ordinances, Policies, and Practices. WES will prepare an evaluation of public policies and practices that affect the provision of fair housing, including but not limited to public services provision, planning and zoning laws and decisions, land use regulations, community development policies and practices, procedures and practices of the local public housing authority, methods used to regulate the residential rental markets, and property tax policies. This review will be conducted through several research activities.
 - If elected by the City, WES will implement a set of targeted telephone interviews with 50 community representatives to identify their views on fair housing and the duty to affirmatively further fair housing, any prospective impediments in the City, as well as any policies and practices that may adversely affect the fair housing landscape and ways the City enhance the fair housing environment.
 - WES will review local studies, including FHC-CC case histories, access to transportation and access to educational opportunity. WES and the City will discuss and define areas of opportunity.
 - Public sector-related questions in the 2016 Fair Housing Survey will help to identify fair housing issues within zoning laws; land use policies; and any other public administrative actions, regulations, or practices. The survey will also ask respondents to identify their awareness of barriers that limit access to public services such as public housing, transportation, or employment services.
 - WES will evaluate if the lack of affordable housing choice falls disproportionately on selected groups, or protected classes, thereby being identified as an impediment to fair housing choice. This will be conducted with the context of all of the City's affordable housing programs, including the Fresno Public Housing Authority.
 - WES will create geographic maps of assisted housing, public housing, and housing choice voucher locations, including the Low Income Public Housing (LIPH) and project based affordable housing of the housing authorities, if provided to WES by the City. WES will compare these to disproportionate concentrations of racial and ethnic minorities and poverty for current residents. Furthermore, WES will determine if these types of housing uses are overly concentrated in particular areas of the City.
- Task 5. Citizen Participation. WES proposes several sub-tasks that will aid in promoting citizen participation and involvement in the AI development process, including the optional 2016 Fair Housing Survey and the three Fair Housing Forums, or optional Focus Meetings.
 - The optional 2016 Fair Housing Survey will be initiated as an online survey of citizens, stakeholders, agencies, and individuals in the City's overall housing arena. WES will begin by targeting experts in the housing field, which will allow substantive information to be collected on perceptions of laws; regulations; and both public and private policies, practices, and procedures affecting housing choice. This survey can have any number of respondents, and respondents can forward the survey to anyone they so desire. This will also be used to address the availability of stock that is accessible for residents with disabilities.

- The three Fair Housing Forums will afford the public opportunities to review the AI process and inspect preliminary findings as well as offer their perspectives, commentary, and experiences with fair housing in the City. WES will present fair housing definitions and preliminary findings, which will be followed by an open session for public comments or questions.
- Furthermore, WES is offering the optional Focus Groups, having discussion with experts in three separate meetings. WES will create and offer the discussion materials, as well as facilitate and record the discussion groups. Tentatively these are suggested as rental markets, homeownership, and public policy and practices.
- WES also offers the concluding Formal Presentations to the HCDC and City Council in Mid-April of 2016. This will fulfill the public input and public review components of fair housing planning, as itemized in HUD's Fair Housing Planning Guide, and will allow the public the required period of time to review the findings and suggested actions.
- Task 6. Identification of Impediments, Recommendations, and Draft and Final Reports. Impediments and actions will be identified as they relate to actions, omissions, or decisions that restrict fair housing choice based upon protected class status; or those actions, omissions, or decisions that have this effect.
 - City representatives and WES will discuss the City's goals and objectives in terms of affirmatively furthering fair housing.
 - WES will identify prospective impediments to fair housing choice.
 - One or more action items that can be undertaken to ameliorate or overcome the impediment will accompany each identified impediment, including measurable results.
 The measurable results will be identified by measurement criteria that represent effective record keeping, documenting actions taken by the City.
 - WES will submit the Draft Review for Internal Review and receive comments from the City within one week.
 - WES will submit the Draft Report for Public Review, and after the public review period, receive any final comments.
 - WES will be available to make the concluding presentations
 - WES will submit the final report in both digital and printed formats.

COUNCILMEMBER REPORTS AND COMMENTS

Vice President Caprioglio announced the meeting would be adjourned in the memory of Robert Duncan. He was known as "Mr. Bulldog" because of his tremendous support of Fresno State and Fresno State athletics. Mr. Duncan was also a supporter of the City of Fresno and was the President of Duncan Ceramics, a successful local business, for more than thirty years.

Vice President Caprioglio announced he was at the opening of the "Walk of Honor" at the Veterans Administration Hospital on November 14, 2015. The beautiful memorial was meant to honor all veterans in the Central Valley. He noted the memorial currently listed more than 1,085 veterans, including more than 40 who were killed in action. Vice President Caprioglio said the Walk of Honor would continue to expand and he hoped to one day add the names of his brother and father. He encouraged all to visit the memorial at the Veterans Administration Hospital at Fresno Street and Shields Avenues.

Vice President Caprioglio congratulated Aetna Insurance on receiving part of 3.7 million dollar state tax credits from the Governor's Office of Business and Economic Development (GO-Biz). Thanks to the credits, Aetna will be able to hire additional employees and create 225 new jobs in the City.

Vice President Caprioglio reported he attended the ribbon cutting at Inspiration Park.

Vice President Caprioglio congratulated the Matoian family for opening a new OK Produce facility in Fresno. He noted OK Produce was a great produce distribution company which had been a valuable local business for four generations.

Councilmember Soria reported her attendance at the ribbon cutting of Inspiration Park. She thanked Councilmember Brandau and Vice President Caprioglio for attending and sharing the moment. Councilmember Soria also thanked those that made the park opening possible: Resources for Independence, Central Valley; the Boys and Girls Club; City of Fresno PARCS Department; the office of the Mayor; former Councilmember Blong Xiong; Fresno Police Officers Association and Fresno Firefighters. She noted that approximately 1,200 people were in attendance and the event was a success.

Councilmember Soria reported she held a community meeting to update the members of her district about Van Ness Boulevard trees and median island. She thanked Assistant City Manager Smith and staff from the Public Works Department for attending and for all their hard work on things like the drip irrigation installation. She noted that their efforts were keeping the median island beautiful.

Councilmember Soria thanked Facilities Manager Sam Laird and his staff for lighting City Hall purple as part of Pre-Maturity Day Walk. First Five Fresno County was a partner for the walk.

Councilmember Soria reported that Self Help Credit Union would open today. She noted the entity would provide an alternative to pay day lenders for communities in need. Councilmember Soria stated she and President Baines were on the Self Help Credit Union Board and that Councilmember Quintero was a former boardmember.

Councilmember Brandau reported his attendance at the ribbon cutting for Inspiration Park. He noted the park was an amazing facility that was designed so that children with physical needs could enjoy the park. He also said the park was there for adults with physical needs that may want to enjoy the facility with their children or grandchildren. He noted that former Councilmember Blong Xiong took part in several votes to make sure the park was made a reality.

Councilmember Brandau commented on the terrorist attacks that took place in Paris, France on November 13, 2015. He placed a small French flag at his seat, "in recognition of the commitment to our friends and allies around the world that suffer these types of tragedies."

Councilmember Quintero reported he would not be in attendance for the 5:30 P.M. Scheduled Hearing regarding the Development Code. He stated he would read the transcripts. Councilmember Quintero asked the City Attorney when he would be able to add amendments to the Development Code concerning mobile vendor checks and balances. City Attorney Sloan replied that the Bill would only be introduced at the current meeting and adoption was planned for December 3, 2015. He stated the administration or another Councilmember could offer his amendments at the current meeting. City Attorney Sloan noted that if a substantial change was introduced on December 3, 2015 then that meeting would be treated as an introduction and adoption would occur the following week. He also noted Council had the option to meet later to clean up certain language and his changes could be added at that time. Councilmember Quintero stated he would have the suggested additions after his final meeting with the mobile vendor group.

City Clerk Spence announced that City Council items 3-A (File ID# 15-1047) and 3-C (File ID# 15-1060) had been removed from the agenda by staff.

Councilmember Soria motioned to table City Council Item 3-B (File ID# 15-1053) until after adoption of the Development Code update. Vice President Caprioglio seconded the motion which passed by a vote of 4 to 3 with Councilmembers Brand, Brandau and Olivier voting "no."

Development and Resources Management ("DARM") Director Clark introduced this item to Council. Mayor Swearengin and City Attorney Sloan also spoke on this

The motion (1, 2 a through 2 j, 3, and 4) was seconded by Councilmember Olivier and passed by a vote of 6 to 0 with Councilmember Quintero absent.

Councilmember Brand motioned to add section 15-6102-E(3) which would allow development to proceed after the the Concept Plan had been received by the City if no general plan amendment was required. The motion was seconded by Councilmember Olivier and passed by a vote of 6 to 0 with Councilmember Quintero absent.

Councilmember Brand motioned to allow a member of the public, the administration, or a Councilmember to return to Council within 180 days with an amendment to address something that may have been missed, or to address an unforeseen consequence of adoption of the new Development Code, without payment of a fee. The 180 day period would commence from the effective date of January 3, 2016. The motion was seconded by Councilmember Olivier and passed by a vote of 6 to 0 with Councilmember Quintero absent.

For the record, Councilmember Brandau asked Director Clark the following question regarding legal non-conforming uses: If a person has a legal non-conforming use and a fire burns more than 50 percent of the building, does the city prohibit the non-conforming use from being re-established? Director Clark stated that section 15-405 (f) of the non-conforming section of the code would allow the structure to be rebuilt exactly as it was prior to the fire so long as it is rebuilt within one year of the destruction and permits are obtained.

For the record, Councilmember Brandau asked Director Clark the following question regarding legal non-conforming uses: Could legal non-conforming uses be passed down to family members or sold, so long as they remained the legal non-conforming use without interruption? Director Clark replied that legal non-conforming uses could be passed down and sold and added that they could continue indefinitely so long as they continued to operate under the rules they were established under.

For the record, Councilmember Brandau asked Director Clark the following question regarding legal non-conforming uses: Could a legal non-conform use expand its operation and could the building be expanded? Director Clark replied that the expansion of the use was governed by 15-404(b) and could not be done without a Conditional Use Permit. In order to expand the building, Director Clark stated certain findings would need to show the resulting use and project design would either: reduce current adverse impacts on adjacent properties and or the general public; would aid in the preservation of a historic resource, or; that the expansion of the use or enlargement of a structure housing and non-conforming use is necessary to comply with a requirement imposed by law for the operation of that use including but not limited to regulations for disabled access or seismic retrofit.

Councilmember Brandau motioned to add section 15-2201-H regarding inclusionary zoning as follows: "Nothing in this Article shall be construed as a provision for inclusionary zoning where an applicant is required to provide housing affordable to moderate, low and very low income households as a condition of approval for a residential development. Furthermore, the Council shall not adopt a provision for inclusionary zoning, as described above, unless and until the Fresno General Plan adopted in December 2014 is updated and superseded by a new General Plan." The motion was seconded by Councilmember Brand and passed by a vote of 4 to 2 with President Baines and Councilmember Soria voting "no" and Councilmember Quintero absent.

Councilmember Brandau motioned to add language to Article 59, Planned Development Permits, that provides for a density transfer procedure that duplicates the current procedure set out in sections 12-403-B(44) and 12-304-B(23) of the Fresno Municipal Code. The motion was seconded by Councilmember Olivier and passed by a vote of 6 to 0 with Councilmember Quintero absent.

For the record, Councilmember Soria asked for clarification on Fair and Proportional Payments and whether grants would be the method the City would use to pay for the infrastructure needs of Disadvantaged Unincorporated Communities after a SB 244 analysis. Director Clark replied that annexation procedures sub section 6104(c)(3) would not exclude any type of financing that might be available and could include grants, or partnering by the county or other state agency. Director Clark clarified that Revenue Neutrality separated Fair and Proportional Payments and Disadvantaged Unincorporated Communities into separate sections.

For the record, Councilmember Soria stated that mobile food vendor amendments may be forthcoming as previously stated by Councilmember Quintero.

Councilmember Soria motioned to add language within the Condo Conversion approval process so that the developer, owner or applicant must file the required relocation assistance plan and a summary of all assistance provided demonstrating compliance with required relocation assistance plan prior to new Condo occupancy. The motion was seconded by President Baines and passed by a vote of 6 to 0 with Councilmember Quintero absent.

Councilmember Soria motioned that in the event of a conflict between the Development Code and California Health and Safety Code section 17021.6, relating to agricultural land use designations for employee housing, the Health and Safety Code would prevail. The motion was seconded by President Baines and passed by a vote of 6 to 0 with Councilmember Quintero absent.

Councilmember Olivier motioned to allow electric fences in all non-residential zones with corresponding changes made pursuant to his handout (now attached to FILE ID# 15-1032). The motion was seconded by Councilmember Brand and passed by a vote of 4 to 2 with President Baines and Councilmember Soria voting "no" and Councilmember Quintero absent.

Councilmember Olivier motioned to remove the 500 foot buffer around Bus Rapid Transit stations, only as it relates to service stations, found in Table 15-1102, Use Regulations, footnote 12. The motion was seconded by Councilmember Brandau and passed by a vote of 4 to 2 with Vice President Caprioglio and Councilmember Soria voting "no" and Councilmember Quintero absent.

Vice President Caprioglio motioned to incorporate the existing medical marijuana dispensary language into the updated Development Code. The motion was seconded by President Baines and failed by a vote of 3 to 3 with President Baines, Councilmember Olivier and Councilmember Soria voting "no" and Councilmember Quintero absent. President Baines clarified that he seconded the motion for purposes of allowing discussion on the topic.

President Baines clarified with Director Clark that there would an operating procedure in place for discretionary routing of by-right uses to Council Offices. Director Clark acknowledged that the procedure would be implemented.

President Baines motioned to amend section 15-404-E(2), regarding non-conforming uses, to read as follows: "Non-Residential Districts. A Legal Non-Conforming use shall not be re-established in any structure in a Non-Residential District if such Legal Non-Conforming use has ceased for a consecutive 12-month period within 5 years of the effective date of this Code. Once the five year period from the effective date of this Code has passed, a Legal Non-Conforming Use shall not be re-established in any structure in a Non-Residential District if such Legal Non-Conforming use has ceased for a consecutive period of 90 days or more." The motion was seconded by Councilmember Soria and passed by a vote of 5 to 1 with Councilmember Olivier voting "no" and Councilmember Quintero absent.

The above hearing concluded at 9:24 P.M.

Public policy vs. private property: Housing fight looms in Fresno

By George Hostetter ghostetter@fresnobee.com

A new federal housing rule aims to end Fresno's long history of concentrated poverty and open wealthy neighborhoods to minorities and the impoverished.

One City Council member says the rule is full of social engineering that will harm all Fresnans.

Figure City Council Member Steve Brandau worries about the possible impacts of new federal rules on housing. | CRAIG KOHLRUSS Fresno Bee

Housing advocates say equity demands immediate housing justice. Fresno's city manager counsels patience.

To be precise, the regulation is called the Final Rule for Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing, and comes from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

in a nutshell, the rule doesn't try to revive the Civil Rights battles of the mid-20th century, although it says blatant housing discrimination (you're black — go!) still exists. Rather, the rule focuses on the concentration of "opportunity assets."

In ether words, geography has come to count above almost all else in the game of life. Stable, well-heeled neighborhoods, by their nature, provide advantages to residents that those living elsewhere are denied.

The third sys the American ideal, violates federal law and perpetuates stark disparities, HUD says. The rule seeks to remove barriers that stop legally protected classes, including minorities and the poor, from effortlessly moving into advertise eous neighborhoods.

"As a farmer mayor, I know firsthand that strong communities are vital to the well-being and prosperity of families," says HUD Secretary Julian Castro, former mayor of San Antonio. "Unfortunately, too many Americans find their dataset mitted by where they come from, and a ZIP code should never determine a child's future.

"This important step will give local leaders the tools they need to provide all Americans with access to safe and interdable housing in communities that are rich with opportunity."

Fresno City Manager Bruce Rudd says he has talked with HUD officials, particularly about the prospect of more low-income housing in higher-income neighborhoods.

"These are obvious signals coming from the federal government that we need to start looking at putting these kinds of are parts of the community," Rudd says.

None of this is new. What's new is the change this could bring to Fresno housing policy. It's a history full of intense, when any policy, debate.

Do I think we're going to run into something like 'Great idea, but just not in my neighborhood?' Yes.

Fresno City Manager Bruce Rudd

City Hall for decades essentially had a colonial outlook. Growth rushed to the north after World War II. Political power went north, too. This power, ensconced in City Hall, sought to revitalize the south in its place. The new rule retains such a goal, but adds mobility. Why not bring the south into the north, even if the former hasn't first attained some sort of vaguely conceived northern ideal?

Council Member Steve Brandau, whose District 2 covers northwest Fresno, says justice and equity are dear to him, too. But, he says, the new rule looks like Big Brother using people as objects to advance centralized planning.

This is the social engineers at work again," Brandau says. "This rule is definitely going to be transformative. It's going to transform north Fresno in the wrong direction."

Pivotal housing fight

Fresno nearly 20 years ago was torn apart by a low-income housing struggle.

Wellington Place was to be a 324-unit apartment complex on 24 acres near Herndon and Spruce avenues in northwest Fresno. The developer, a Clovis-based company, wanted to finance the project with tax-exempt bonds issued by the Housing Authority.

The process required developer Peter Herzog to get City Council approval. After a month of fighting, the council in early 1997 rejected Herzog's request on a 5-2 vote.

The sticking point was in the eye of the beholder.

Herzog said nearby homeowners hated Wellington Place because the project would include 65 units for low-income renters. He painted opponents with their worries over increased crime and sinking property values as "elitist."

Chris Mathys, northwest Fresno's council member at the time, said Wellington Place was simply bad housing policy.

"I don't believe it is fair that we subsidize as taxpayers low-income housing when we already have a high vacancy rate in Fresno," Mathys said.

The urban core also would suffer if there was a flight of inner-city renters to north Fresno, Mathys said.

Supporters and opponents each held a rally to drum up public support. The Wellington Place hearing in March 1997 was moved to the Fresno Convention Center's Saroyan Theater to handle the crowd of 600. Speakers were cheered and jeered by the audience.

An official with Central Unified School District worried about overcrowded schools. Council Members Ken Steitz and Mike Briggs (the yes votes) worried about a lawsuit. Former Council Member Les Kimber worried about the integrity of fair housing laws.

Herzog filed a $27 million lawsuit in May 1997. The charge: City Hall's decision discriminated against minorities, children and the disabled, each a protected class under federal and state fair housing laws.

More than a dozen defendants were named at the start. In the end, it was City Hall and Mathys against Herzog and one other plaintiff.

We will use enforcement as the last resort.

HUD spokesman Ed Cabrera

A faderal jury decided the council's rejection of Wellington Place did have a "disproportionate impact" on minority renters with little money. But, the jury added, the city would have come to the same decision even if low-income minority renters weren't in the picture.

An appeals court upheld the jury verdict. The plaintiffs walked away with $2 in damages. Mathys and City Hall walked away with vindication.

"An incredible victory," said City Attorney Hilda Cantu Montoy.

The drama took nine years to play itself out.

Autry does his best

It tank another three years and the charisma of a former pro football quarterback-turned-Hollywood actor to get the justice of geography back in City Hall's spotlight.

Jim Patterson never seemed to have much time for low-income housing during his lone term (1997-2001) as a strong mayor. When he wasn't successfully battling a spirited recall effort, Patterson was losing a vicious fight with the City over the scale of a downtown baseball stadium.

Then came the summer of 2000 and Alan Autry.

"We continue to be a 'tale of two cities,' not a 'story of one,'" Autry said during his campaign for mayor against Dan Whitehurst.

Exactly what this meant wasn't clear until Autry took office in January 2001. What unfolded over the next eight years was ironic, indeed.

Autry frittered away political capital early in the game with bluster about reforming Fresno Unified School District. But mostly he focused on what essentially was a siege of the urban core's woes. He wouldn't take active measures to med north and south. He would bring the south up to the north's level.

If people in the rebuilt south decided they were happy where they were, well, so be it.

Auty moved quickly to build the stadium, supposedly the catalyst for downtown's rebirth. He borrowed millions for No Neighborhood Left Behind, supercharging the construction of curbs and sidewalks in older areas. He pushed the Regional Jobs Initiative, another of those public-private collaborations designed to put people to work.

Conventional wisdom at this time, and for decades before, held that growth to the north was responsible for decay in the south. Autry issued piles of bonds to change this.

There was a catch.

Money for the bonds' annual bill was to come from a reformed system of developer fees. But to collect enough fees to pay for the growing load of debt, Fresno's developers had to build single-family homes like crazy.

This wasn't a problem during the go-go housing boom of 10 years ago. But almost all of the homes were built in the same suburbs that federal officials now see as impregnable vaults of opportunity assets not found in minority-heavy neighborhoods.

In the eyes of some critics, Autry merely poured gasoline on the fire.

As he left office in January 2009, Autry said his legacy is "building a solid foundation for the future."

Swearengin makes big plans

Four key things happened in the current era of Mayor Ashley Swearengin regarding low-income housing.

First, she asked at the start of her first term for an update of the city's growth blueprint.

The 2035 general plan got City Council approval this past December. It's part of an ambitious mayoral agenda. The archaic development code is getting a makeover. The 11 square miles that were Fresno before World War II have their own redevelopment plan. Downtown's Fulton Mall may soon be Fulton Street again. A blight-fighting task force has taken aim at slumlords.

But the general plan is Swearengin's star. The plan promises to rid Fresno of "high concentrated poverty, high unemployment and extreme disparities in quality-of-life circumstances and opportunities in different parts of the city." It's a rare mayoral speech that doesn't touch on that theme.

Second, Fresno continued to be a favorite of nonprofits with a computer and a yen for ranking cities on various misery indexes.

A workforce with superb science and math skills? Fresno's labor pool was found to be near America's bottom. A park system with enough quality green space? Fresno's is always at the bottom. The Brookings Institution in 2005 found fresno to have the most concentrated poverty of any big city in the nation. What about suburban poverty? Brookings in 2013 said Fresno ranks No. 5 nationally.

As Swearengin once said of another abysmal Fresno ranking, the city all too often is in "a race to the bottom."

Third, Fresno Housing Authority CEO Preston Prince hit his stride. He came to town in late 2007, just as the Great Recession gathered steam. Prince was forced to bide his time, but only briefly.

The opening of Parc Grove Commons turned a lot at Fresno Street and Clinton Avenue into 215 units of affordable housing. The vacant Droge Building, downtown's scariest structure with ugly steel poles propping up its walls, was torn down and the site turned into CityView @ Van Ness, 45 housing units for renters of modest income. Half of what had been Fresno's scariest block, the stretch of Santa Clara Street in front of the Poverello House, saw the immense homeless camp disappear and the Renaissance at Santa Clara, 70 housing units for the chronically homeless, take its place.

rince has done such stuff over and over.

City Hall's relationship with Prince has been testy at times. He often asks for financial help on projects deemed by some city officials to be too expensive.

But perhaps a bigger source of conflict is Prince's nature. He's a doer. As he said at one grand opening of a Housing Authority project, "we can lease up." That sticks in minds now that pressure builds to do something like Parc Grove, CityView and Renaissance at Santa Clara in north Fresno.

Fourth, HUD at the end of Swearengin's first term released a blistering report outlining systemic failures throughout Fresno's housing division. One result was to put City Hall squarely in the sights of HUD officials.

The two sides have tried to fix things for three years.

"I think they're beginning to iron themselves out," Rudd says.

Out through the chatter

And now comes HUD's final rule on Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing.

It takes up 101 pages in the Federal Register. Rudd and Prince say they're still getting their arms around the rule's meaning and what to do next.

One thing seems clear. City Hall's preferred low-income housing policy, where the effect if not intent is to segregate low-income renters or buyers in southern parts of town, is toast.

Key parts of the rule:

- * $\prescript{applies}$ applies to entities receiving HUD money. Fresno and the Housing Authority annually receive millions from HUD.
- It builds on the 1968 Fair Housing Act. This prohibits discrimination on factors such as race, religion, disability or family status.
- HUD grantees (entities like City Hall and the Housing Authority) must craft a detailed analysis of what HUD calls "fair housing issues in its geographical area." These patterns include integration, segregation and racially/ethnically concentrated areas of poverty.

This is bringing social engineering to a new level. It's going to be resisted by communities across the nation.

Figs no City Council Member Lee Brand

- HUD is especially interested in the distribution of opportunity assets. There's trouble if there's no housing mobility between neighborhoods rich in education, employment, transportation and environmental health and those without.
- Land-use decisions (the essence of City Hall's mission) will go under the microscope. For example, zoning policies made without overt prejudicial intent that end up segregating minorities or the poor may not survive legal scrutiny.

 This concept is sometimes called disparate impact, and its authority was recently affirmed by a U.S. Supreme Court decision in a Texas housing controversy.
- HUD's reach doesn't stop at the city limits. A Fresnan or developer moving to Clovis to escape the rule's consequences is out of luck. The rule strongly encourages regional solutions.

HUD's 24-page analysis of its own rule doesn't come right out and say cities are losing political control of their destiny Federalism isn't dead. But it does suggest cities will find that their longtime federal partner on housing issues will move to senior status if necessary.

City Halls, the analysis says, "have a statutory duty to affirmatively further fair housing."

HUD spokesman Ed Cabrera says the fair housing rule is full of "the spirit of collaboration." A city hall and HUD will work together on "where we go initially," he says.

The San Francisco-based Cabrera says his office has "enjoyed" working with Fresno City Hall on many issues.

Cabrera acknowledges that HUD is aware of much of Fresno's housing history, and is learning more all the time.

So, is Fresno No. 1 on HUD's to-do list?

Housing discrimination still exists in more nuanced forms and persists in both rental and sales markets.

HUD analysis of its final rule on Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing Cabrera doesn't bite. He says only that the fair housing rule "is an opportunity" for Fresno officials to do the right thing themselves. He says Fresno officials will "have all the support they need from HUD."

But, Cabrera adds, the rule has a clear goal: "Get people out of concentrated poverty." He says such a change of geography among the disadvantaged "really does work."

As to HUD's considerable enforcement powers, Cabrera says it should be enough to simply repeat that Fresno officials "will need to take into account the new rule."

Opposing sides take shape

Hald on, Fresno. Wellington Place could look like a pillow fight compared to what's next.

two's new fair housing rule is well-known to local housing advocates who have longed for an issue to bind their many beefs with City Hall.

Lesh Simon-Weisberg, San Francisco-based legal director with renters advocacy group Tenants Together, says Fresno has too many neighborhoods lacking parks, quality housing and top-notch schools.

When the Fresno Police Department began providing extra police service to Housing Authority apartment properties

"These are the same places where the majority of folks of color in Fresno live," Simon-Weisberg says. "They are not having equal access to all of those resources."

Veronica Garibay, co-director with Fresno-based nonprofit Leadership Counsel for Justice & Accountability, says City Hall must provide "opportunities for individuals and families of all income levels to live in the neighborhoods where they choose to live."

But the trigger to this revolution, the proposed Wellington Place or Renaissance at Santa Clara-type project, has yet to land on the City Council's plate.

Rudd says housing funds in this fiscal year are budgeted for things like rehabilitation of owner-occupied houses and remodeling for homes owned by seniors. Discussion of new low-income apartment complexes anywhere in Fresno, let alone in the north part of town, may have to wait until next spring, he says.

Brandey and Council Member Lee Brand (who serves northeast Fresno) wonder whether Fresnans in good faith will be allowed to speak their minds when that first controversial Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing project gets here.

For example, they point to the council's approval on July 16 of a contract to provide two sworn Fresno police officers for 13 Housing Authority-connected apartment complexes in southeast and southwest Fresno. The officers are funded with HUD money.

Chief Jerry Dyer says his department has provided extra protection to Housing Authority apartments for nearly 25 years. Housing Authority officials and their renters clearly don't want destabilizing behavior in their backyard.

Brandau and Brand ask if their constituents risk being shouted down if they simply ask for HUD-funded extra police protection at the low-income housing complexes coming to north Fresno.

It's too early to say.

Cabrera says his HUD colleagues would love to get an invitation to come to City Hall and talk things over in public.

"I think they would be ready," he says.
